Princely Pear Pie	Ohho! To taste the sweet life of royalty if only for a moment. And completely regicide free!	Baked pears, citrus, and cinnamon, wrapped in a crust so flaky it shatters the moment your fork makes contact.
Suspicious Sausage	Look, you're starving and it appears edible. Try not to think about... Wait, is that a fingernail?	There's something distinctly off about this peculiar link. It smells savory yet sinful.
Toefinger Jam	No toes or fingers were harmed in the making of this jam. Promise.	A deliciously tangy spread made from the unfortunately named Toefinger Berry, which has a digit-like appearance.
Brandybush Berry	Old folktales suggest ingesting the pit will cause it to grow in your stomach. Hmm, infinite food hack?	A shiny, violet berry with a hard pit in its center. It tastes sour at first, but gradually turns to a delicate sweetness.
Skintail Steak	Grab life by the tail and take a big ol' bite of... Well, it's rat. Maybe just accept that you're eating a rat, chief.	This thin strip of gamey, chewy rodent meat still has the tail attached for mess-free eating.
Northwind Radish Stew	Hearty, thick, packed full of vitamins, and it could really use some salt. And pepper. And anything with flavor, really.	A traditional meal of the Northwind clans. It's said having a bowl before a battle brings good luck.
Crystal Clear Water	Hey, look at that. See-through juice.	This water is so clear and crisp that there couldn't possibly be any impurities or pathogens to worry about.
Glok's Rye	"Knock it back, slam the cup, do your best to stand back up! Oh well, have another on me!" - Miner's Drinking Song from Music of the Mountains by Latravarious Sharpe	This golden brown whiskey is some of the strongest in the kingdom. One shot of it is enough to get you tipsy.
Slow Chariot Port	Aristocrats often refill empty bottles of far superior port with this cheap swill, then offer it to their guests. Classy.	A sweet, fortified wine with a deep red color that is sure to stain anything it touches.
Beechnut Citrus Punch	Nothing says summer quite like warm sun, the smell of freshly reaped meadow grass, and a cold glass of grandma's punch. RIP Gam-Gam.	The bright citrus flavor is balanced with the sweet nuttiness perfectly. It's the perfect afternoon in a glass.
Gold Mountain Ale	Looks the same way goin' in as it does goin' out.	An affordable, flavorful brew popular amongst laborers. They say, "No matter where you are you're never far from a pint o' gold."
Simmered Kobold Blood	Yep. That's cooked blood. It's probably useful for... something potion-y, maybe?	This elixir ingredient is hard to come by, and even harder to transport. The odor is foul, and it degrades at a shocking speed. Best to use it quickly.
Ivory Dragon Broach	Oh, luxury! Unless you have a fancy cloak to match, wearing this would make you look like a thief.	This intricately carved broach features the head of a beautiful white dragon. This would surely fetch a high price.
Rusted Locket	So, what, you collect trash now?	What was once likely a symbol of somebody's undying love is now a broken piece of unusable rubbish.
Old Soiled Boot	It's filled with mud. Wait, is that mud? Please be mud...	This tattered, dirty leather boot is well beyond any use. Seems its previous owner gave no effort to dispose of it properly.
Carved Lancer Toy	Now with spear jabbing action! Awesome!	A tiny armored knight mounted atop a dashing steed. The miniature lance he bears is actually quite sharp.

Datapad LT7	Everyone should have one of these. I mean, what else are you going to look at instead of talking to people?	A typical touchscreen datapad from the LT series. Lightweight, foldable, and now with a nearly indestructible alloy frame.
GoGo Meat Xtreme	The tummy troubles these products cause led to the popular slang, "I've got the GoGos."	GoGo brand's most popular item. Spiced, caffeinated taco meat in a tube with a tear-off top.
High Quality Processor	The third best kind of chip. The first being potato, second being corn.	This computer component has definitely been used, but is still functional and ready to be implemented in any modern computer system.
Spent Vape Canister	Whoever emptied this bad boy is trippin' balls somewhere. Or they're dead. Fun!	This one-off vape canister is cheaply made, suggesting it was designed to deliver a powerful hit of the street opioid "tak."
CardioMaster Ring	When you put it on, the ring glows red and beeps and boops. Is that good?	A piece of techwear commonly worn by senior citizens to warn them of heart-related issues.
All-N-One Hygiene Kit	You'll never need to shower again. Why waste the water?	These packets are sold in vending machines in almost every building. Toothbrush with toothpaste, dry shampoo, cleansing wipes—it's got it all.
One Shot One Swill Café	They make, like, twelve different flavors of this, but the coffee one is all that stores seem to stock. Maybe one day you'll get to try Orange Daydream.	A coffee flavored meal replacement drink. Pulling the can's tab initiates a chemical reaction that heats the drink almost instantly.
Broken Sticky Light	Light part is broken, but you keep finding this stuck to you in various places.	Handy little lights with an adhesive that sticks to almost any surface, and comes off easily, too. But this one is busted.
SwitchFlip Multi-Tool	Everyone has one of these, it seems. Thanks, grandma.	A new tool at the press of a button. Built in screwdrivers, hammers, clippers, etc.
Mag Belt Classic	Whoa, it looks like an old timey belt!	A belt made of recycled material designed to look like leather with a decorative buckle that clicks together magnetically.

Real Flame Synthetic Candle	You see one of these and you know it's time for some sweet, sweet lovin'.	It may be made of synthetic materials, but this candle still burns with a real flame. Very popular amongst romantic types.
Dead Rail Clip	It's heavy, it smells weird, and there's no way to fix it. You should definitely keep carrying this around.	A magazine that holds railgun ammunition using electromagnetic technology. Seems to be out of juice, though.
Lost Sock	Yep, future people still gotta wear socks.	A fancy sock with a fun pattern. Missing its partner.
Timmy Brand Pizza Leather	"A pizza in your pocket for any occasion, everyone's favorite across the nation, you grab one of these, it's gonna be grand, only the best, it's Timmy Brand!"	A dehydrated, flattened, pizza-like substance. A top-seller for Timmy Brand despite it's toughness.
Bunker Buster Gummies	These'll clear out any tastebud insurgents, soldier.	These ooze-filled gummy candies start off super sweet, then assault the mouth with intense sourness. You've been warned.
